AUXILIARY OF LEGION MEETS HERE THURSDAY

Tri-County Council Of Adams, Franklin And York Entertains Officers.

Members of the American Legion Auxiliary comprising the Tri-County council of Adams, Franklin and York counties, scheduled to meet in Gettysburg, in their regular quarterly session, next Thursday, are expected to go on record approving the movement to preserve the headquarters in the field of General George Gordon Meade.

Prominent members of the auxiliary, including Mrs. Frank B. Emery, of Williamsport, department president of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Mabel Stark, of West Pittston, Pennsylvania department rehabilitation chairman; Mrs. Frances Hagerman, of Towanda, department publicity chairman, and many others are to be in attendance at next Thursday's sessions. In addition Franklin and York county members of the auxiliary are expected to be present in large numbers.

Board Meets at 11
The executive board will meet at 11 o'clock in the morning, in the local auxiliary rooms, First National bank building. Following this session the visitors will hold an informal social hour. Luncheon will follow at 12:15 o'clock and the general session will be convened at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

The three state officers from Williamsport, West Pittston and Towanda will deliver addresses and informal discussions on various subjects of particular interest to the auxiliary will follow.

Solicited Articles
Victrola records, discarded decks of playing cards, old silk hose or rayon garments, cut carpet rags and other articles are solicited for this annual donation visit. These articles are turned over to the hospital authorities and the afflicted veterans, many of whom have been confined for some time, apply their ingenious art in the manufacture of various things.

Mrs. Leroy Winebrenner, of Gettysburg, vice president of the Tri-County Council, has received a large number of reservations for the quarterly meeting and a record attendance is expected.

The local auxiliary has taken an active part in Legion affairs and it has achieved an enviable reputation in the state department as one of the most active branches in Pennsylvania.

Monday's meeting is called for 7:30 o'clock in the First National Bank building.

CAT TALE

Speaking of canaries, there is, in the Grand Central terminal in New York, a large cat that probably never has seen a bird. Its only distinction is its enormous vanity.

The animal lives in a candy-store and at night is placed in a showcase, to keep it from wandering out into the great spaces of the waiting rooms. The glass case offers few diversions, but it does have a mirror on one side. Travelers from the west, arriving on early morning trains, may see Oscar proudly preening himself in front of the mirror. Night after night he walks back and forth, apparently admiring the sleek image, his only companion.

School Seniors Here on Sunday

More than 100 high school seniors and their parents from a Chicago suburb will visit Gettysburg, Sunday, tour the battlefield and then proceed on their way to Washington, the objective of their annual tour. Following their tour of the battlefield the visitors will have lunch at the Blue Parrot tea room.

Another party of fifty visitors, scheduled to come to Gettysburg tomorrow, was forced to postpone their Gettysburg stop because of a change in their itinerary.

A group of Milwaukee high school seniors is expected here within the early future.

TYRONE URGES STONE CRUSHER

50 Taxpayers Oppose Buying Of Road Scraper; Machine To Be Delivered March 15.

Fifty taxpayers of Tyrone township, meeting at the P. O. S. of A. hall, Heidlersburg, Friday evening, to discuss the purchase by the township supervisors of a road scraper, decided that a stone crusher should be substituted for the scraper. The meeting, which was called by G. E. Rebert, Heidlersburg, was presided over by Charles Bushey. The taxpayers were in session from 8 to 11 o'clock.

Only one of the township supervisors, Joseph Bream, and the secretary of the board, Edward Wright, were in attendance. After hearing the discussion, Mr. Bream said that he personally was willing that the supervisors should substitute a crusher for the scraper, but said he could not speak for the other supervisors, E. J. Martin and D. M. Cashman.

Scraper Is Ordered
Inasmuch as the road scraper, purchased at a cost of $750, has already been ordered and was scheduled for delivery March 15, it was explained that the company might not be willing to make the substitution, if the supervisors decide to change.

The taxpayers were informed that a bid had been received for the repair of the old road scraper at a cost of $65, placing it in condition to operate for a number of years.

A stone crusher, it was explained, would cost between $900 and $1,200, and the taxpayers were agreed that they were willing that the supervisors should buy the more expensive piece of equipment, if satisfactory arrangements could be made with the company. If the scraper has been shipped, however, and has to be sent back to the factory, the township will have to bear the freight charges both ways, it was explained.

NEGRO IS HELD ON 2 CHARGES

Eugene Patterson Held For Pointing Gun At Wife; Assault And Battery Charged.

Eugene Patterson, 27, colored, was arrested at his home on South Washington street, Friday afternoon, by State Trooper William B. Davis and Detective Charles Wilson after the negro is alleged to have choked his wife and threatened to shoot her with a pistol.

Patterson was arraigned before Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer on a charge of pointing firearms, and was committed to the Adams county jail in default of bail. An additional charge of assault and battery also was preferred against the colored man.

Two loaded guns were taken from the Patterson home by the officers who met with no resistance when they went to arrest the man.

28 SCOUTS MAY BE LOST IN FLOOD

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 23 (AP).—A cottage in which 28 Boy Scouts were camping near Rockwood, Tenn., was washed from its foundation and sent swirling down a swollen stream today by flood waters.

Reports reaching here were that residents of the section heard the screams of the boys in the cottage and it is feared that all drowned.

Jackson, Miss., March 23 (AP).—The telephone operator at Glaston informed the Associated Press today that three negroes were killed in a storm at Harrison early today and five houses blown down.

CHURCHES TO HOLD SPECIAL PALM SERVICES

Solemn High Mass In Catholic Church; Seminarians To Sing Passion.

Elaborate Palm Sunday services will be held in St. Francis Xavier Catholic church at ten o'clock, Sunday morning, with priests and seminarians from Mt. St. Mary's college and seminary participating.

In addition to regular Palm Sunday service, the choir has prepared a special musical program appropriate to the occasion. The blessing of the palms and their distribution will take place before the opening of the solemn high mass, during which the choir will sing "The Palms" said to be one of the most beautiful numbers used in Catholic services.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph J. McAndrews, of Mt. St. Mary's college, will be the celebrant of the mass. A deacon and sub-deacon will also participate.

To Sing Passion
The passion, usually read by the celebrant of the mass in most Catholic churches, will be sung by eight seminarians from the Emmitsburg theological school. Three seminarians take leading roles in the singing of the Passion, Christus, the Historian and the Jew, while the other five members join. No music accompanies the singers.

Palm Sunday is one of the most sacred observances in the Catholic church and elaborate arrangements are always made for the high mass services.

A procession will be held before the opening of mass.

The altars have been attractively decorated with cut flowers, ferns and plants.

Palm Sunday will be observed in all of the Protestant churches when appropriate sermons will be delivered by the pastors and special programs of pre-Easter music presented. The services will mark the opening of Holy Week during which many special services will be conducted.

Preparatory services were conducted this week in many churches of the county, preparatory to Palm Sunday services.

Warren Pilots Maroons '29

"Shorty" Warren, six-foot four-inch center for the Maroon and White basketballers, was elected to pilot the high school quintet in the 1929-1930 season at a banquet held for the squad Friday night at Saubie's Inn, at Taneytown.

Warren's choice was no surprise to the followers of the local high school team. "Shorty" completed his second year of varsity basketball this season, carrying off the individual scoring honors for the inter-scholastic league. Last year he was picked as center on the all-league team and bids fair to land the position again this season.

As well as being a basketball star, Warren clinched a position on the battlefield football team. For the past two seasons he has played tackle although injuries kept him from the lineup the better part of the past season. Warren succeeds Captain Joe Sadler as leader of the Maroons.

It was announced that letters would be awarded to the entire squad of nine players as well as Manager George Stock. Gold basketballs will also be given to the senior members of the squad.

Those who will receive "G's" are Captain Joe Sadler, captain-elect Warren, Kitzmiller, Wermick, Wilson, Sheely, Stoner, Weikert and Roddy. The seniors who will receive the gold basketballs are Wilson, Sadler, Sheely and Stoner. With five lettermen back next year, Gettysburg is expected to have another good team.

JERSEY SCOUTS VISIT FIELDS

338 Members Of North Bergen, New Jersey, Council Arrive In Special Train.

Three hundred and thirty-eight Boy Scouts, members of the North Bergen, New Jersey, county council, visited the battlefield today.

After arriving here at 7:30 o'clock this morning in a special train of the Pennsylvania system, the scouts were placed in ten large buses for a tour of the battlefield. A guide accompanied each busload of boys.

The morning was spent on the battlefield, and after a box luncheon at the train at noon, the scouts marched to the National cemetery where a wreath was placed at the National monument, which marks the spot on which Lincoln stood while delivering his immortal Gettysburg address.

Entertained At College
After the exercises at the cemetery, the scouts went to the Eddie Plank memorial gymnasium at Gettysburg college where college basketball and wrestling teams staged exhibitions for the visitors.

The scouts were scheduled to leave Gettysburg on the return trip at 5 o'clock, and will arrive at Newark at 10:30 o'clock tonight. They left Newark at 10:40 o'clock, Friday night.

Ralph H. Philo, scout executive of North Bergen county, was in charge of the group. He was assisted by fifty scout troop leaders and fathers of some of the scouts. The party was recruited from 44 towns in North Bergen county, chief of which were Hackensack, Englewood, Ridgefield Park, Rameek, Bogota and Cliffside Park.

Hoover Deems Navy Yacht Luxury; Puts Mayflower Out of Service

Washington, March 23.—Yachting on the Mayflower is too expensive a luxury for President Hoover. Although Calvin Coolidge, apostle of economy, enjoyed the presidential yacht, notwithstanding an annual expenditure of $300,000 in maintenance, Mr. Hoover does not believe the taxpayers should be charged that much to maintain the vessel.

So it will be put out of commission. It will be tied up at some government dock and its nine officers and crew of 148—traditionally looked upon as the "pampered pets of the navy"—will return to active duty.

With a demand for increased naval personnel to man the larger vessels coming into commission, Mr. Hoover feels the Mayflower crew can be used to better advantage elsewhere.

This is the second presidential economy of a personal nature Mr. Hoover has put into effect. Last session Congress passed a bill to establish a summer White House for the president at Mount Weather.

Old and Young Pay Tribute to Foch's Memory

Paris, March 23 (AP).—The youth of France as well as veteran soldiers and statesmen today paid tribute to the memory of Marshal Foch and at the marshal's own request four Boy Scouts between the ages of 12 and 14 will stand guard over the body during the imposing funeral ceremony now being planned.

As the people of France of all ages and conditions, of life continued to file past the bier, the government completed its preparation for the great state funeral on Tuesday.

The transfer of the body from the Foch home to the Arc de Triomphe tomorrow will be more imposing than was first planned. The body in a black hearse will leave at 8:30 tomorrow morning accompanied by the minister of war and other members of the cabinet. A squadron of cavalry will escort it.

Rebels Ready To Attack Mazatlan

(By The Associated Press)
Rebel troops in their counter offensive against the government were at the gates of Mazatlan on the west coast today and fighting for the possession of that port was imminent.

Some fighting between the 2500 defenders and the 5000 rebels was reported but apparently little blood has been shed.

A force of 6,000 federal reinforcements was rushing to the relief of the city.

The rebels who recently evacuated Torreon before the Calles advance were again proceeding southward and were reported about 30 miles north of Durango. A rebel advance also was developing on Naco. The rebels have imposed a war tax on Nogales for funds to run the revolution.

RED ARROW TO HOLD CONTEST

Three Prizes, Totalling $500, To Be Awarded Individuals Receiving Most Votes.

A booster contest similar to a popularity contest will feature the Red Arrow auction, the fifth in the series, to be held sometime during the month of June, according to an announcement made today by Mark Eckert, president.

The contest is described as a voting game. The three individuals receiving the highest number of votes, secured with Red Arrow money, will receive the following awards: First, $250 ladies' diamond ring; second, $150 over-stuffed living room suite, and the third award a $100 wrist watch.

The awards are on display at Blocher's Jewelry store and the R. W. Wentz Furniture store.

The contest is open to everybody. With the entrance of an individual into the contest, the initial nomination blank is good for 1,000 votes. Details of this feature are contained in the Red Arrow display advertisement appearing in today's issue of The Times.

Votes are secured through winning bids at the various auctions, registration and other mediums. Full details are available at any Red Arrow store.

A "new voucher" that will be a big help to organizations competing for the bag of $150 in gold has just been announced by Mr. Eckert, the club president.

"All Red Arrow money brought to the G. W. Weaver and Son Department store at any time will be exchanged for an 'exchange voucher' having four times the value of the Red Arrow money surrendered. These 'exchange vouchers' may be used by organizations only, in the payment of an organization bid. Attached to this voucher will be a booster ballot giving four times the number of votes at a cent each as represented by the Red Arrow money surrendered," Mr. Eckert said.

Show Movies Of Tour To Rotary Club

Dr. Charles F. Sanders, who recently returned from a world cruise, will show moving pictures of his tour before the Rotary club at its weekly luncheon meeting at the Eagle hotel Monday evening, at 6 o'clock.

EASTER RECESS AT SEMINARY BEGINS

The Lutheran theological seminary closed today for an Easter vacation. Classes will be resumed on Tuesday, April 2. Gettysburg college and academy will close at week-end his time will be spent there instead of cruising down the Potomac or going to government property on Mount Weather.

It is known that Mayflower trips were regarded by Mr. Hoover as "stupid." As a member of the Harding and Coolidge cabinets he had to make many week-end cruises down the Potomac. The trips bored him. The yacht is old and relatively small. It has not been outside the Virginia Capes since it was taken to Massachusetts the first year Mr. Coolidge was in the White House.

CLUB OFFICERS ARE HONORED

Old and new officers were honored at the regular meeting of the Business and Professional Girls' club, in the Y. M. C. A. Each officer, old and new, was presented with a bouquet of roses and a special program was rendered, featured by a solo by Miss Ethel Culp, president of the club.

The old officers included Mrs. Alice Foster, who has been absent for several months because of illness; Miss Grace Hummer, vice president; Miss Helen Sheely, secretary, and Miss Esther Hartman, treasurer.

The present officers are Miss Ethel Culp, president; Miss Margaret Howard, vice president; Miss Hazel Bowling, secretary, and Miss Violet Sachs, treasurer.

The Rev. Edward H. Jones delivered a brief talk.

SUCCESSOR TO HILL RUMORED

Only One Of Four Potential Candidates Is Actively In Field, Report Says.

The death this week of John L. Hill, veteran attorney and justice of the peace, leaves a vacancy in the magisterial office which he held to be filled by appointment by Gov. John S. Fisher.

Since Mr. Hill's funeral names of a number of potential candidates for the position have been heard at the court house, among them Neil W. Gibson, a local notary and clerk at the Gettysburg Buick company; P. C. Stock, president of council; Attorney S. S. Neely and Attorney William L. Meals.

Gibson Lost Out
Only one of this quartet, Mr. Gibson, is an active aspirant for the position, so far as The Gettysburg Times has been able to learn. He was an applicant for the vacancy caused by the resignation of Joseph U. Applier as justice of the peace several months ago, but John C. Shearer, former sheriff of the county, received the appointment, and is now engaged in the position.

Mr. Stock, who has lived retired since he resigned his position in the local postoffice a year or two ago, said he would not seek the position, but added that if the appointment were offered him he would accept.

Attorneys discussing the appointment of a successor to Mr. Hill expressed the hope that perhaps a member of their own profession could be induced to accept the appointment. They said that in many instances a justice of the peace requires a thorough and working knowledge of the law in deciding cases before him. That knowledge of the law is one reason why Mr. Hill was so popular as a magistrate, the attorneys said.

Attorneys Decline
But Mr. Neely and Mr. Meals, both attorneys, today emphatically asserted that they were "not interested" in the appointment.

Mr. Hill, who was elected justice of the peace in 1923, was rounding out the last of his six-year term so that his successor will be appointed for only the unexpired portion of the term with the opportunity, however, of seeking re-election this fall.

Butter Holds Firm At Curb Market

Buying was on a restricted scale at curb market today, showers keeping many away from the open stands. Eggs continued to sell at 28 and 30 cents a dozen, with butter holding firm at 50 cents a pound. Potatoes moved slowly at 65 and 70 cents a bushel, with little demand evidenced for apples which sold from $1.50 to $2 a bushel.

MRS. LEWARS AND VETERANS FAVOR MEADE PROJECT

Noted Author Expresses Views On Preserving Headquarters Of General.

Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars, noted author, whose contributions to many internationally circulated magazines have added to her fame, is the newest sponsor of the movement to preserve General Meade's headquarters, on the Taneytown road.

The following statement was received by The Times:

"Mrs. Lewars favors the preservation of General Meade's headquarters both because it is a memorial of the battle and because it is one of the few remaining houses, of its type, from which the landscape of 1863 may be reconstructed."

Washington Camp, 414, Patriotic Order Sons of America, of Gettysburg, recently adopted a resolution approving the plan to preserve the historic dwelling from the elements. The local lodge went on record endorsing the project and urges the war department to take early action to keep this famous field headquarters in its natural state and to house within it such relics as are available.

Charles E. Stallsmith is the president of the lodge.

Veterans' Resolution
The York Springs P. O. S. of A. Camp, 295, adopted the following resolution relative to the Meade headquarters.

"Be it resolved that Camp No. 295 go on record favoring the preservation of permanent establishment as a national museum of the headquarters building of General Meade, located at Gettysburg, Pa."

"Resolve that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to our representative in Congress, requesting that they use their influence to accomplish same."

(Signed) "Washington Camp P. O. S. of A."

Not one communication has been received by The Times opposing the plan. Every letter addressed to the Memorial Editor and those expressions given verbally have all favored the movement and the war department has been urged in every instance to take immediate steps to save this rapidly tumbling little building.

The Times invites its readers to express their opinion regarding the movement so that the war department can be informed just what the sentiment is here regarding the maintenance of this historic relic.

2300 Bills are Before Assembly And More Coming

Harrisburg, March 23 (AP).—With more than 2300 bills already introduced in the legislature and more expected next week, the record of 2466, including resolutions, established in 1919, is expected to be surpassed.

The House has sent Wednesday of next week as the final date for introduction of new bills but no time limit has been placed in the Senate.

Only four weeks remain until the date set for adjournment and administrative leaders at present see no obstacles in the way to prevent adjournment April 18.

The major problem before the legislature will come up for disposition beginning Monday night when the highway program will be considered as a special order of business in the House.

Repair Emmitsburg Road For Hoover

Probability of construction of shoulders on the Emmitsburg state road from Lewistown towards Frederick this season was predicted when it became known that the project is now before the Maryland State Roads commission. Inasmuch as this is the highway which will be used by President Hoover in making journeys to the fishing retreat provided for him by Lawrence Richey, his executive secretary, the hope was expressed that the roads commission would construct the shoulders as soon as possible.

STOCK REPORT

New York, March 23 (AP).— Heavy liquidation developed in to- day's stock market carrying scores of issues down two to seven points in reflection of the uneasiness cre- ated by the announcement that the federal board was meeting again in Washington. Fears that the board would take further action to restrict the volume of speculative credits led to an abandonment of pool activities. The closing was weak.

The Andorrans claim they are under the protection of France, that they are regularly registered at the French Consulate at Bar- celona, and that their sole military obligation is that of serving under the colors of Andorra.

Just Folks

HEREDITY

His great-grandfather as a boy
Snatched from a playmate's hand
A toy,
And selfishly when friends would Come
Refused to let them play his drum.

His father's father as a lad
A domineering nature had.
He drove away the other boys
Who ventured near to his toys.

His father in a trunk upstairs
Still has the dogs and teddy bears,
And all the trinkets neatly piled
Which were his treasures when a child.

And now he snatches things away
From little friends who come to play,
And mother whispers in his ear:
"Come Willie, don't be selfish,
dear!"

Maroon and White Ball Toss- ers Play First Practice Game Of Season On Friday.

Coach Eugene Martin made use of the summer-like weather Fri- day and sent his baseball tossers through their first practice game of the year which the regulars won 4-3. Both teams were changed somewhat throughout the contest and the game was not played strictly according to the rules, Martin merely wishing to give his tribe a taste of real ball.

Four straight days of fine base- ball weather has given the Ma- roons plenty of chance to get in- to shape and the Martinmen are fast moulding together. Both teams played good ball and several nice plays were executed.

Lute Pittenturf and Pitzer each took a turn on the mound for the regulars in the seven-inning ses- sion, while Reds Hartman did the receiving. The infield was com- posed of Wermick at first, Sheely at second, Appler at third with Kitzmiller at shortstop. Wilson, Roddy and Sadler formed the out- er defense. Bud Knox took part in the batting practice but did not lineup with the team.

A young chap by the name of McClellan, star hurler for the Fair- field high nine last season, hurled for the scrubs. McClellan delivered well and bids fair to be a big help to Martin who expects him to de- velop into a winning pitcher. Bill Swisher caught for the reserves.

The lineup of the reserves was Dale Pitzer and Weaver, first base; Flynn, second base; Robert, third base; Wentz and J. Pitzer, short stops; Pierce, left field; Sanders, center-field, and Harbaugh, right- field. All showed promise and many changes are likely to take place in the future.

Sidelights
of New York

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
New York.—It must be a swell job, that of court organist to American money kings. You meet such influential people. And you don't have a lot of rivals.

Until recently Archer Gibson was the only private organist to American potentates of industry. For 25 years he has played for Charles M. Schwab, and he holds the same position in the palaces of John D. Rockefeller, senior and junior; H. E. Manville, the as- bestos king; Mrs. H. McK. Twombly, ranking member of the Van- derbilt clan, and other nobles of finance and society.

They all have pipe organs in their homes and Gibson's function is to play for them and their guests. There is an organ, too, in his own apartment, its pipes in- geniously hidden in closets and cupboards.

Schwab Organ's "Angel"

Gibson, who is 53 years old, be- came a professional organist at the age of seven, when he got a job playing in a church at Balti- more, his birthplace, for $25 a year. He already was prominent when Schwab, a quarter of a cen- tury ago, installed in his chateau on Riverside Drive the first mod- ern residential pipe organ in the world and engaged Gibson to play it regularly.

Schwab himself is an organist. He may not play as often as he used to, but he still finds pleasure at the console that looks down from

Y. W. C. A.
ACTIVITIES

The Etiquette group of the Get- tysburg High School Girl Reserve club entertained at a formal din- ner party at the Y. W. C. A. Sat- urday evening. Among the forty- five guests were members of the school faculty and club advisers. Miss Ruth Naylor is adviser for the Etiquette group.

"Clothes" will be the subject of the meeting to be held Monday af- ternoon by the Arendtsville Girl Reserve club at the school house. Miss Larue Hostetter and Grace Hartman will speak on spring styles, and Nellie Culp will have charge of a millinery demonstra- tion. Dorothy Ely and Ruth Arndt will speak on "Clothes as an Ex- pression of Character." Members of the club will come in old fash- ioned costumes.

The regular meeting of the York Springs Business Girls' club will be held at the home of Miss Pearl Gardner on Tuesday even- ing.

The membership committee of Littlestown, Miss Rose Barker chairman, will complete its drive for members on April 5th when the committee will meet at the home of Miss Barger and reports will be made.

The Girl Reserve club recently organized for the colored girls of Gettysburg has chosen "The Maple Leaf" as the name for its club and will hold election of officers on next Wednesday evening. A group for the older women has also been organized and will hold its second meeting Wednesday even- ing. Mrs. T. J. Winebrenner will conduct the Bible Study for this group.

The spring course in story tell- ing for girls between the ages of eight and twelve will start Wed- nesday, March 27, at the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Kenderton Lynch and Mrs. Henry Bream will be the story-tellers, and all the girls in Gettysburg between these ages have been invited to attend.

On account of the many church services being held during Holy Week only a few of the Y. W. C. A. clubs in the county will meet during the week.

the grand staircase. It is said that sometimes at the close of a private recital he has seated himself at the manuals and given the audience a few selections not on the pro- gram.

In fact, says Gibson, the steel magnate is the father of the new type of organ. The movies had hardly come into being, and or- gans—hand-pumped affairs—were used almost exclusively in churches, when his private instru- ment was built. It was the first to be electrically pumped, and to have drums, bells and other orchestral effects and it cost perhaps a quar- ter of a million dollars to install.

But there is none more complete today; not even the new and larger instrument in the du Pont castle at Wilmington, Del.

Firmin Swinnen, a Belgian who formerly played in a Broadway movie theatre, is private organist for the du Ponts. So far as Gib- son knows, he and Swinnen are the only ones in their field.

New Organs Condensed

As a consequence of Schwab's interest and assistance, America is a generation ahead in the house organ's development, Gibson says. Organs now may be purchased in apartment size and it is not neces- sary to hire players, for they oper- ate mechanically from rolls record- ed by Gibson, Swinnen and others. They are, of course, more compact than the Schwab instrument, whose blower is in the second sub- cellar and whose pipes are massed in 40 large closets throughout the mansion up to the top floor, sev- en stories above.

The house is so constructed that the chords of "The Rosary," of which the owner is fond, flow be- hind walls to the great hall where guests are gathered.

CHAPTER XIV

Published by arrangement with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
Three of us, "The Prodigal," Salvation Jim and myself, join the Klondike gold rush of '98. The settlements were filled with dance-halls, gamblers and gold-seekers. I met Berna with whom I fell in love. Thousands struggled over the almost impossible trails which claimed a heavy toll of life and property. Lawlessness was rampant.

A snow slide several miles back had buried hundreds. Berna's grandfather had been killed. I could not see her.
On our way down I rescued Berna from the Rapids of Fifty Mile River.
The Winkelmans plan to marry Berna to Jack Locasto, a notorious character.
She rebuked me for substituting friendship for love. At Dawson City we were advised to go back because there was no land available. Locasto would not tell me where Berna was.
I tried him. He trapped me and beat me unmercifully. The Jack Wagon took up my fight. The opera house was jammed for the battle, in which
"The Wagon" beat Locasto to a pulp—I was avenged.

I got a clue as to where Berna has been hidden.

"In the cabin by the Slide?" I asked.

She started, looked at me searchingly. "You know her?"

"She means a good deal to me."
"Oh, I understand. Yes, that long, queer cabin highest up the hill."
"Thanks, old chap."

"All right, good luck." He accompanied me to the door, staring at the marvel of the glamorous Northern midnight.

Very softly I approached the cabin,
for a fear of encountering her guardians was in my heart. It was in rather a lonely place, perched at the base of that vast mountain abrasion
they call the Slide, a long, low cabin, quiet and dark, and surrounded by rugged boulders. Carefully I reconnoitered and saw, to my infinite joy,
I saw the Jewish couple come forth and make their way toward the door.
The girl was alone.

How madly beat my heart! It was a glowing kind of a night, and the cabin looked woefully bleak and solitary. No light came through the windows, no sound through the moss-covered walls. I drew near.

I knew now that I cared for this girl more than I had ever thought to care for woman. I knew that she was dearer to me than all the world else; I knew that my love for her would live as long as life is long.

I knocked at the door. No answer.

"Berna," I cried in a faltering whisper.

Came the reply: "Who is there?"

"Love, love, dear: love is waiting."

Then, at my words, the door was opened and the girl was before me.

I think she had been lying down, for her soft hair was a little ruffled, but her eyes were far too bright for sleep. She stood gazing at me, and a little fluttering smile came up to her heart as if to still its beating.

I seized the sweet, soft hand and covered it with kisses. At that moment I could have kissed the shadow of that little hand; I could have lived before her in speechless adoration. I loved her so, I loved her so!

"High and low I've sought you, beloved. Morning, noon and night you've been in my brain, my heart, my soul. I've loved you every moment of my life. It's been desire feeding despair, and, O, the agony of it! Thank God, I've found you dear! Thank God! Thank God!"

She had thrown a shawl around her shoulders, and coaxed her hair into charming waves and ripples.

"Come, let us go up the trail a little distance. They won't be back for nearly an hour."

Along the brow of the bluff the way wound dizzily, while far below the river swept in a giant eddy. For a long time we spoke no word. "Twas as if our hearts were too full for utterance, our happiness too vast for expression."

"And so you found me, dear. I knew you would, somehow. In my heart I knew you would not fail me.
So I waited and waited. The time seemed pitilessly long. I only thought of you once, and that was always. It was cruel we left so suddenly, not even time to say good-bye.
I can't tell you how bad I felt about it, but I could not help myself. They dragged me away. They began to be afraid of you, and he bade them leave at once. So in the early morning we started."

"I see, I see." I looked into the pools of her eyes. I sheathed her white hands in mine, and, thrilling greatly at the contact of them.

"Tell me about it, child. Has he bothered you?"

"Oh, not so much. He thinks he has me safe enough, trapped, awaiting his pleasure. But he's taken up with some woman of the town just now.
By-and-bye he'll turn his attention to me."

"Terrible! Terrible! Berna, you must let me hear of you. Can you talk of such things in that matter-of-fact way—it maddens me."

An odd, hard look ridged the corners of her mouth.

"Don't know. Sometimes I'm surprised at myself how philosophical I'm getting."

"But, Berna, surely nothing in this world would ever make you yield?
O, it's horrible! horrible!"

She leaned to me tenderly. She put my arms around her neck; she looked at me till I saw my face mirrored in her eyes.

"I know, my boy, I know. Believe me and trust me. I would rather know myself from the bluff here than let him put a hand on me. And so long as I have your love, dear, I'm safe enough. Don't fear. O, it's been terrible not seeing you! I've craved for you ceaselessly. I've been out since we came here. They wouldn't let me. They kept in themselves. He bade them. He has them both under his thumb. But now, for some reason, he has relaxed.

They're going to open a restaurant downtown, and I'm to wait on table."

"No, you're not!" I cried, "not if I have anything to say in the matter.
Berna, I can't bear to think of you in that garbage-heap of corruption down there. You must marry me—
now."

"Now," she echoed, her eyes wide with surprise.

"Yes, right away, dear. There's nothing to prevent us, Berna. I love you. I want you. I need you. I'm just distracted, dear. I never know a moment's peace. I cannot take an interest in anything. When I speak to others I'm thinking of you, you all the time. O, I can't bear it, dearest, have pity on me: marry me
now."

In an agony of suspense I waited for her answer. For a long time she sat there, thoughtful and quiet, her eyes cast down. At last she raised them to me.

"You said one year."

"Yes, but I was sorry afterwards.
I want you now. I can't wait."

She looked at me gravely. Her voice was very soft, very tender.

"I think it better we should wait,
dear. This is a blind, sudden desire on your part. I mustn't take advantage of it. You pity me, fear for me, and you have known so few other girls. It's generous, chivalry, not love for poor little me. O, we mustn't, we mustn't. And then—you might change."

"Berna," I said, "if you were among a thousand, and they were all as adorable as all the world, I would pass over them all and turn with joy and gratitude to you."

"Ah, no," she said sadly, "you were wise once. I saw it afterwards.
Better wait one year."

"Oh, my dearest," I reproached her, "once you offered yourself to me under any conditions. Why have you changed?"

"I don't know. I'm bitterly ashamed of that. Never speak of it again."

She went on very quietly, full of gentle patience.

"You know, I've been thinking a great deal since then. In the long, long days and nights when I waited here in misery, hoping always you would come to me, I had time to reflect, to weigh your words. I remember them all: 'love that means life and death, that great dazzling light that passion that would raise to heaven or drag to hell.' You have awakened the woman in me! I must have a love like that."

"You have, my precious; you have, indeed."

"Well, then, let me have time to test it. This is June. Next June, if you have not made up your mind you were foolish blind, hasty. I will give myself to you with all the love in the world."

"Perhaps you will change."

She smiled a peculiar little smile.

"Never, never fear that. I will be waiting for you, longing for you, loving you more and more every day."

I was bitterly cast down, crestfallen, numbed with the blow of her refusal.

"Just now," she said, "I would only be a drag on you. I believe in you.
I have faith in you. I want to see you go out and mix in the battle of life. I know you will win. For my sake, dear, win. I would handicap you just now."

I saw the pathetic wisdom of her words.

"I know you fear something will happen to me. No! I think I will be quite safe. I can withstand him.
After a while he will leave me alone.
And if it should come to the worst,
I can call on you. You mustn't go too far away. I will die rather than let him lay a hand on me. Till next June, dear, not a day longer. We will both be the better for the wait."

I bowed my head. "Very well," I said huskily; "and what will I do in the meantime?"

"Do! Do what you would have done otherwise. Do not let a woman divert the current of your life; let her swim with it. Go out on the creeks!
Work! It will be better for you to go away. It will make it easier for me. Here we will both torture each other. I, too, will work and live quietly, and long for you. The time will pass quickly. You will come and see me sometimes."

"Yes," I answered. My voice choked with emotion.

"Now we must go home," she said.
"I'm afraid they will be back."

She rose, and I followed her down the narrow trail. Once or twice she turned and gave me a bright tender look. I worshipped her more than ever.

We reached the cabin, and on the threshold she paused. The others had not yet returned. She held out both hands to me, and her eyes were glittering with tears.

"Be brave, my dearest; it's all for my sake—if you love me."

"I love you, my darling; anything for your sake. I'll go tomorrow."

"We're betrothed now, aren't we, dearest?"

She swayed to me and seemed to fit into my arms as a sword fits into its sheath. My lips lay on hers, and I kissed her with a passionate joy.
She took my face between her hands and gazed at me long and earnestly.

"I love you, I love you," she murmured; "next June, my darling, next June."

Then she gently slipped away from me, and I was gazing blankly at the closed door.

"Next June," I heard a voice echo

and there, looking at me with a smile, was Locasto.

It comes like a violent jar to be awakened so rudely from a trance of love, to turn suddenly from the one you care for most in all the world, and behold the one you have best reason to hate. Nevertheless, it is not in human nature to descend rocket-wise from the ethereal heights of love. I was still in an exalted state of mind when I turned and confronted Locasto. Hate was far from my heart, and when I saw the man himself was regarding me with no particular unfriendliness I was disposed to put aside for the moment all feeling of enmity. The generosity of the victor glowed within me.

As he advanced to me his manner was almost urbane in its geniality.

"You must forgive me," he said,
not without dignity "for overhearing you, but by chance I was passing and dropped upon you before I realized it."

He extended his hand frankly.

"I trust my congratulations on your good luck will not be entirely obnoxious. I know that my conduct in this affair cannot have impressed you in a very favorable light, but I am a badly beaten man. Can't you be generous and let by-gones be bygones? Won't you?"

I had not yet come down to earth.
I was still soaring in the rarefied heights of love, and inclined to a general amnesty towards my enemies.

As he stood there, quiet and compelling, there was an assumption of frankness and honesty about this man that it was hard to withstand.

For the nonce I was persuaded of his sincerity, and weakly I surrendered my hand. His grip made me wince.

"Yes, again I congratulate you. I know and admire her. They don't make them any better. She's pure gold. She's a little queen, and the man she cares for ought to be proud and happy. Now, I'm a man of the world. I respect my mother and my sister, but I don't distrust me. Is there anything I can do for you? What are you going to do in this country?"

"I don't quite know yet," I said.

"I hope to stake a good claim when the chance comes. Meantime I'm going to get work on the creeks."

"Well, I'll tell you what: I've got laymen working on the Eldorado claim; I'll give you a note to them if you like."

"I thanked him.

"Oh, that's all right," he said.
"I'm sorry I played such a mean part in the past, and I'll do anything in my power to straighten things out.
Believe me, I mean it. Your English friend gave me the worst drubbing of my life, but three days after I went around and shook hands with him. Fine fellow that. We opened a case of wine to celebrate the victory.
Oh, we're good friends now. I always don't sleep when I'm beaten, and I never bear ill-will. If I can help you in any way, and hasten your marriage to that little girl there, well,
you can just bank on Jack Locasto:
that's all."

I must say the man could be most conciliating when he chose. There was a gravity in his manner, a suave courtesy in his tone, the heritage of his Spanish forefathers, that convinced me almost in spite of my better judgment. No doubt he was magnetic, dominating, a master of men.
I thought: there are two Locastos, the primordial one, the Indian, who had assaulted me; and the dignified gentle one, the Spaniard, who was willing to own defeat and make amends. Why should I not take him as I found him?

So, as he talked entertainingly to me, my fears were dissipated, my suspicious lulled. And when we parted we shook hands cordially.

"Don't forget," he said; "if you want help, bank on me. I mean it now, I mean it."

"Twas early in the bright and cool of the morning when we started for Eldorado, Jim and I. I had a letter from Locasto to Ribwood and Hoofman, the laymen, and I showed it to Jim. He frowned.

"You don't mean to say you've palled up with that devil," he said.

"Oh, he's not so bad," I expostulated. "He came to me like a man and offered me his hand in friendship. Said he was ashamed of himself. What could I do? I've no reason to doubt his sincerity."

"Sincerity be damned. He's about as sincere as a tame rattlesnake.
Sincere in his letter in the creek."

"But no! I refused to listen to the old man."

"Well, go your own gait," he said;
"but don't say that I didn't warn you."

Following the trail, we struck up Bonanza, a small muddy stream in a narrow valley. Down in the creek-bed we could see ever-increasing signs of an intense mining activity.
On every claim were dozens of cabins, and many high cones of greyish muck.

About noon we descended into the creek-bed and came to the Forks. It was a little town, a Dawson in miniature, with all its sordid aspects infinitely accentuated. It had dance-halls, gambling dens and many a loons: every convenience to ease the miner of the plethoric poke. There in the din and daze and dirt we tarried awhile; then, after eating heartily, we struck up Eldorado.

TEN YEARS AGO

Ladies of Red Cross Honored.

As a fitting finish to the Red Cross work which has been done during the past two years under the auspices of Mrs. Clyde B. Stover, Mrs. William Hersh and Mrs. Harold Lewars, the ladies who have been assisting recently gave a party in their honor in the Red Cross room.

The party was gotten up as a complete surprise to the three ladies in whose honor it was held.
About thirty-five members of the Red Cross arrived in the room before the time the party was to commence and maintained complete silence until the three guests arrived and turned on the lights.

In speaking of the part of the program one of the ladies said:
"Can you imagine it? Thirty-five women in a room and not a sound."
Mrs. H. T. Weaver poured the coffee and refreshments were served by the members.

High School Boys Form New Club.—Plans for the organization of the "Adelphian" club are being formulated by twenty-five boys of Gettysburg high school, which, if carried out successfully, will mean that the town will have some place where their young boys can go for recreation.

Rev. Paul R. Pontius was asked by the High School boys to aid in the organization. A tentative constitution and by-laws have been presented to Miss Helen Cope and Walter Reynolds, of the high school, for their consent.

Horace Armer was elected president, Donald Weiser vice president, Clare Winebrenner secretary and Brady Armer treasurer.

Dr. Hartman moves.—Dr. H. M.
Hartman has moved his residence permanently to 231 Springs avenue. His office however will remain at 26 Baltimore street.

Farm House Will Be Modern
Inn.—Gettysburg is to have a modern road house just beyond the town limits. This fact was made known by Frank Eberhart who has already started extensive improvements on the buildings of his farm one mile and a half from town on the Lincoln Highway to Chambersburg.

"The Richwood", which is the name Mr. Eberhart has chosen for the inn, will be equipped to serve special dinners at all hours which will no doubt attract many evening parties. The large field across the road from the house is now being plowed in preparation for the golf links which will be laid out upon it. A tennis court will be built in the rear of the inn.

Bucher-Benner.—Miss Mary E.
Benner, of Gettysburg, and H. A.
Bucher, of Cashtown, were married at twelve o'clock noon today at the parsonage of Zion Lutheran church, Harrisburg, by Rev. S. W.

Heiman.

The bride is a graduate of the Shippensburg Normal school, and has taught school twenty-eight years, the last eleven of which were in the schools of Gettysburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Bucher are on a wedding trip to New York city,
New Haven, Conn., and Boston, Mass. After April first, they will be at home at "Alta Vista", Cashtown.

Steam Laundry Changes Hands.
—C. Ray Rupp, of East Middle street, and Jesse Snyder, of South street, have purchased the Gettysburg Steam Laundry from George W. Rex.

Ray Rupp, who is at present employed in the furniture factory, will move to the Steam Laundry property on Steinwehr avenue next Monday and will act as general manager of the laundry. Jesse Snyder intends to retain his position at the post office.

Mr. Rex has successfully conducted the business for the past seven years.

Raffensperger.—Eicholtz.—Miss Helen A. Eicholtz, daughter of Mr.
and Mrs. M. Eicholtz, and William Arnold Raffensperger, son of Mr.
and Mrs. Harry Raffensperger, both of Menallen township, were united in marriage Tuesday in Arendtsville, by Rev. D. T. Koser.
Mr. and Mrs. Raffensperger will conduct the restaurant and confectionery store in Arendtsville.

Arendt — Guise. — G. Robert Arendt, of Railroad street, and Grace Belle Guise, of Bendersville, were married by Rev. Paul Reid Pontius at the Reformed parsonage on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arendt intend making their home in the West.

Ground Broken for Hospital.— Work was started Tuesday by a large force of men on the excavation for the Annie M. Warner hospital, Mrs. Warner turned the first shovel of dirt on Monday.

Victrola Purchased for the High School.—The Senior Class has purchased a good Victrola for the use of the High School. The gift was presented on Tuesday morning by the class president, Robert Hartley. Quite a number of good records furnished entertainment for assemblies.

Personal Notes.—Mr. and Mrs.
John Lipp motored to Chambersburg Tuesday.

A surprise and birthday party was given Mrs. Harry Geiselman on Tuesday night at her home.
About forty friends were present.

C. Milton Wolf has moved from Carlisle street to the house recently purchased from his father, Edward M. Wolf, at 108 York street.

Mrs. Ernest Yohn and family, of Harrisburg, spent Sunday in Gettysburg, as guests of Mrs. William Hersh.

Henry Hillman left this morning for Baltimore.

James King has returned to Indian Head, Maryland, after visiting at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest A. Page have left for Chicago where they will make their residence for some time. Mrs. Paige was formerly Miss May Sheads.

The schools of town closed Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock in honor of Dr. Nathan Schaeffer, whose funeral took place in Len-caster at that time.

Miss Nona Brown is visiting her sister, Mrs. Sarah B. Cox, of Lincoln avenue.

Birthday Party.—A very enjoyable birthday party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry
C. Gilbert on Chambersburg street Wednesday evening in honor of the seventh birthday of their daughter, Dorothy. Those present were Mr.
and Mrs. Harry C. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Ray M. Hoffman, Mrs. Arthur
Myers, Mrs. Katie Barbehn, Mrs.
Emory Dougherty, Miss Mildred

Now, let me think a minute or three. Where did we leave our little rabbit? Oh, yes, now I remember,—he had met his old friend, the circus elephant, and while they had been doing some funny tricks a peddler had come along.

"Wish I could find enough canvas in my pack to make a tent," exclaimed the peddler. "You two fellows certainly know a trick or two, and maybe a dozen."

"I already belong to a circus," remarked the old elephant. "I wouldn't join another, not if you paid me any weight in gold!"

"In that case, we won't have a circus," agreed the peddler, "for what would a circus be without an elephant?"

By this time everybody was tired, anyway, so the little rabbit and the old elephant said goodby and started off again on their travels.

"Let me see," all of a sudden remarked the old circus animal, "I never been away three days of my week's vacation, so there are only four left."

"We'd better make the most of them, then," chuckled the little bunny, "for I shall be sorry to lose so fine a comrade as you."

It was now nighttime, so they both sat down to eat their lunch.
The little rabbit opened his knap-

sack and took out a bottle of lemon soda, two carrots, and a bag of peanuts, which was all he and the old elephant needed. Pretty soon they both closed their eyes for a nap. And then, what do you suppose happened? Why, the old elephant suddenly remembered that he had an appointment that very afternoon with the circus clown.

So, without waking up his little bunny friend, he tiptoed away.
Yes, sir, he tiptoed away, although he found it very difficult to stand on his toes, for he weighed a ton without any clothes.

Of course, by and by, after a while and a dream and a smile, the little rabbit woke up. Wasn't he surprised and disappointed not to find his great big kind friend near by? Well, I guess he was. "Dear,

When You Move,
Phone-Write-Call
your gas company

WHEN you're moving this April don't forget to have the gas service sent on ahead. What's more discouraging than to get into the new home and find that you forgot to have the gas connected!

Requests for service will be attended to promptly, whether received by phone, mail or in person. Our entire organization is at your service to take care of your needs, whether it be an inspection, an installation, or a transfer of service.

Remember, however, that during the moving season we receive hundreds of calls daily and in order to give efficient service, it is necessary for us to receive notification of the intended move as far in advance as possible. Then we can schedule an expert gas man to call at the old house, read your meter and disconnect the service, and send him also to the new home to make the connections for gas service there—all without inconvenience to you.
